WHAT IS THIS BOOK ABOUT?

The China, 1930–1990 course investigates the major changes in China during the 20th century. The course focuses on the causes, course and consequences of the Chinese communist revolution during this period. You will study the different political, economic, social, international and military changes that occurred as a result of this event.

Purpose

This study guide will enable you to understand the complexities of 20th century China. You will investigate themes such as civil conflict, external influences on China, economic transformation, social transformation and the role of leadership. This guide will help you develop the historical thinking skills of causation and consequence, similarity and difference, and change and continuity.

Topics

This study guide will give you the knowledge to understand the following 4 enquiries:

- ☐ The first enquiry addresses why China became a communist state by 1949. This includes the changes brought by the Chinese Republic, why a civil war erupted between the Guomindang and the communists during the 1920s, why the communists undertook the Long March, why the Yanan Soviet was important, the impact of the Second World War on China, and why the communists finally won the civil war in 1949.
- ☐ The second enquiry addresses how China was transformed between 1949 and the mid-1960s. This includes the changes to agriculture, social changes, the impact of the Five Year Plans on industry and society, and an assessment of whether these changes benefitted the people of China.
- ☐ The third enquiry addresses the impact of communist rule on China's relations with other countries. This includes considering her relations with neighbouring countries such as India, Korea and Tibet, China's changing relationships with the USA and the Soviet Union, whether China could be considered a superpower by 1976, and how China changed its relationship with the world in the years after Mao Zedong's death.
- ☐ The fourth enquiry addresses whether communism produced a brutal and cruel dictatorship in China. This includes considering the causes and impact of the Cultural Revolution, the nature of politics in China and the different factions that tried to seize power after Mao Zedong's death, and the ways in which economic developments produced social and political changes during the 1980s.

Assessment

China, 1930-1990, is one of the specified depth studies found in Paper 1, where you have a total of 2 hours to complete 3 questions. You must answer 2 questions from the core section of the paper and one question from a choice of two on your chosen depth study. Therefore, you will answer one question on China, 1930-1990 if this is your chosen depth study. The question is comprised of 3 sections - a, b and c.

- 👤 Question a is worth 4 marks and requires you to describe key features of the time period. You will be asked to recall 2 relevant points and support them with details, or provide at least four relevant points without supporting detail.
- 👤 Question b is worth 6 marks and requires you to explain a key event or development. You will need to identify 2 reasons, support those reasons with relevant factual detail, and explain how the reasons made the event happen.
- 👤 Question c is worth 10 marks and requires you to construct an argument to support and challenge a stated interpretation. You will need a minimum of 3 explanations (2 on one side and 1 on the other) in total, and should fully evaluate the argument and come to a justified conclusion. You will have the opportunity to show your ability to explain and analyse historical events using 2nd order concepts such as causation, consequence, change, continuity, similarity and difference.
- 👤 China, 1930-1990 will also appear on Paper 4; a one-hour paper in which you will give an extended answer to one question about this topic. Check with your teacher to find out if you will be taking this option.

CHINA IN 1900

In the mid-19th century China was one of the most powerful countries in the world. However, by the turn of the 20th century, foreign powers were starting to dominate.

What was the position of China in 1900?

China (p.0) was a powerful country in 1900. It was the largest country in Asia, had vast natural resources and was a strong producer of goods.

Who ruled China in 1900?

In 1900, China's (p.0) 300 million population was ruled by Zaitian. He was the 11th and penultimate emperor of the Qing dynasty.

Where did China control in 1900?

China's (p.0) borders stretched from Manchuria in the north east, down to the borders of Burma and Laos in the south, and across to Tibet and Xinjiang in the west.

Why was China in decline in early the 1900s?

In 1900, China (p.0) began to see a decline for 3 reasons:

- ✓ China (p.0) had been defeated in the Opium Wars between 1839 and 1860. It was feeling the consequences, which included Britain taking valuable resources from China.
- ✓ China (p.0) had also been defeated in the 1894 war with Japan, which resulted in it losing control of Korea.
- ✓ France had also gained territory in the south of the Chinese (p.0) empire. They gained Vietnam during the Sino-French War of 1884-85.

DID YOU KNOW?

China had the largest population on earth in 1900! China had nearly 25% of the world's population at this time with 400,000,000 million people living there! This was more than the whole of the British Empire combined.

RULING IN THE COUNTRY

I have often thought that I am the most clever woman that ever lived and others cannot compare with me... Although I have heard much about Queen Victoria.'
Dowager Empress Cixi, 1800s.

What was the system of ruling in China?

China (p.0) was ruled by an imperial system with one person having complete control over the empire.

Who ruled China?

China (p.0) was ruled by an emperor. This wasn't limited to one family but worked on the basis that any dynasty could rule so long as fate favoured them.

When was China ruled by emperors?

China (p.0) was ruled by various emperors and dynasties from 1570 BC to AD 1912.

Why was China ruled by emperors?

People believed in the 'Mandate of Heaven'. This suggested that fate had chosen the emperor, and this should be respected as part of the world's natural order.

DID YOU KNOW?

Dynasty ruling of China had lasted for centuries! One of China's first emperors (Qin Shi Huang, 259 BC –210 BC) was buried with over 8000 terracotta soldiers to protect him in the afterlife. This is a famous attraction today and can still be visited.

THE BOXER UPRISING, 1899-1901

European powers began to cement their positions within China. The Boxer Uprising was sparked by resentment, but would end in even more concessions being granted to foreign powers.

What was the Boxer Uprising?

The Boxer Uprising was an anti-foreigner attack led by Chinese (p.o) peasants.

Who led the Boxer Uprising?

A secret organisation, the Society of Righteous and Harmonious Fists, began the attacks before they became more widespread among peasants.

When did the Boxer Uprising happen?

The Boxer Uprising took place between 2nd November 1899 and 7th September 1901.

Why did the Boxer Uprising happen?

There were 3 main causes of the Boxer Uprising:

- ✓ During an attempt to modernise, Emperor Guangxu was overthrown by his aunt, Empress Dowager Cixi. Cixi opposed the privileges being given to foreigners in China (p.o).
- ✓ The Chinese (p.o) had a deep-rooted hatred towards the 'foreign devils', as they were seen to be changing the usual way of life and attacking the traditional religions.
- ✓ As a way of avoiding criticism, Cixi promoted the 'foreign devils' as a common enemy of the people. She scapegoated them and encouraged violent attacks against them.

What were the key events of the Boxer Uprising?

There were 7 key events which happened during the Boxer Uprising:

- ✓ Peasants had suffered from many natural disasters during the late 1890s.
- ✓ The Boxers began attacking foreigners and Christians.
- ✓ Attacks started in the east coast province of Shandong before spreading further north east to locations such as Shanxi.
- ✓ The uprising arrived in Beijing and the German ambassador, Clemens von Ketteler, was killed.
- ✓ Panicked, westerners sought refuge in the British Legation. Around 3,000 westerners and Chinese (p.o) Christians were besieged for 55 days.

- ✓ Cixi backed the Boxers and declared war. However, the forces were unable to overcome the legation's defences. An international military force was sent, which defeated the Boxers.
- ✓ Cixi, escaping potential capture, hid herself as a peasant among the population and fled to Xian.

What was the impact of the Boxer Uprising?

There were 5 key consequences for the failed Boxer Uprising, which continued to weaken China (p.0):

- ✓ The Qing dynasty suffered damage to its reputation. This imposed another Western defeat on the Chinese (p.0).
- ✓ The Chinese (p.0) were forced to pay reparations of $330 million over the next 39 years.
- ✓ China's (p.0) military fortifications, defences and weapons were destroyed.
- ✓ International forces were permanently placed in locations across Beijing and 10 officials were executed for their roles.
- ✓ The failed attempt to get rid of foreigners convinced Cixi that reforms must happen. However, the reforms were unsuccessful and led to the fall of the Qing dynasty in 1911.

DID YOU KNOW?

Some of the reparations from the Boxer Uprising were spent in China! Tsinghua University in Beijing was opened on 11th April 1911 using funds the reparations issued in the Boxer Protocol.

SELF-STRENGTHENING REFORM, 1902-11

'Learn barbarian (Western) methods to combat barbarian threats.' — Wei Yuan, 1843.

What were the self-strengthening reforms?

These were a series of education, monetary, military, political and commercial reforms. They aimed at modernising China (p.0) through learning and copying Western methods, and technology from the countries with a presence in China.

Who introduced the self-strengthening reforms?

The reforms were introduced by Empress Dowager Cixi.

When were the self-strengthening reforms introduced?

The reforms were introduced over a number of years, between 1902 and 1911.

Why were the self-strengthening reforms introduced?

Cixi introduced the reforms for 3 main reasons:

- ✓ She needed to secure her dynasty following the embarrassment and consequences of the Boxer Uprising (p.15).
- ✓ As foreigners were even stronger in China (p.0), Cixi decided to use their knowledge to help her advance her country.
- ✓ Little progress had been made in the late 1800s and Cixi needed to take quick action to improve her dynasty's reputation.

What changes did the self-strengthening reforms introduce?

There were 7 key changes which occurred during the reforms:

- ✓ 1902: Foot binding was banned.

- ✓ 1905: Traditional examinations for civil service positions were removed in an attempt to improve diversity in the sector, which was traditionally heavily Mandarin.
- ✓ 1908: A new army was established.
- ✓ 1909: Provisional assemblies were introduced.
- ✓ 1910-11: National Consultative Council established to help advise the government.
- ✓ Educational reforms were introduced, with more opportunities for military service and international scholarships.
- ✓ The railways were nationalised to offer more consistency and control in transportation.
